ADDITIONAL PROGRAM SERVICES

Early Intervention Partnerships (EIPP) is a home visiting program sponsored by the Massachusetts Department of Public Health and MassHealth for pregnant women, mothers, infants and their families. The purpose of EIPP is the early identification of maternal and infant risk and linkage of families to services to prevent or mitigate poor health and/or developmental outcomes. This program is provided in addition to the South Central Early Intervention Program operated by Kennedy-Donovan Center.

EIPP provides support services, health and parenting education, child development screenings, and referrals starting in pregnancy and continuing through the child's first year of life.

The EIPP team members are comprised of a maternal child health nurse, a mental health counselor and a community health worker.

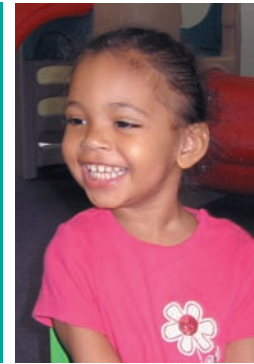

Services are confidential, available at no cost to families, and are individualized to meet family needs.

Preschool/Early Learning is a private preschool program with an age eligibility from two years, nine months to age five. The one, two or three day developmental, play-based program is available Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 12:15-2:45 p.m. The program also offers toddler groups. WHAT IS EARLY INTERVENTION?

Certified by the Massachusetts Department of Public Health and Connecticut's Birth to Three System, Early Intervention provides services to young children under 36 months who have, or are at risk for developmental delays. A team that includes developmental specialists, physical, occupational and speech therapists, work with the family and child to determine their needs and create a care plan. Home visits are provided to enhance the developmental progress of the child.

Kennedy-Donovan Center's Early Intervention Program is comprehensive, family-centered and community based.

TURN TO KDC

Our Early Intervention Program is the place to turn when your infant or toddler (birth to 36 months) is faced with developmental challenges, such as:

Developmental delays in gross and fine motor, receptive and expressive language, social-emotional, self-care or cognitive skills.

Medical conditions or diagnoses affecting development.

Environmental conditions which affect development, such as need for parenting education or a need for social supports for the family.

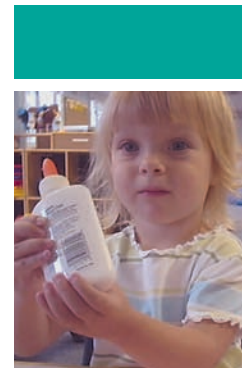

FINDING HELP

Referrals are made to Early Intervention by parents, physicians and other professionals in the community who have a concern about the child's development and other concerns expressed by the family.

Developmental Evaluations

When a child is referred to Early Intervention, the team will complete a developmental evaluation. This evaluation will look at all areas of development and will determine the child's eligibility for Early Intervention services.

ELIGIBILITY

The Massachusetts Department of Public Health and the Connecticut Birth to Three System establishes criteria which determine a child and family's eligibility for early intervention services. These criteria include a specifically defined level of delay in development, or at-risk conditions, or an established medical diagnosis.
